HERBAL TEAS

Herbal teas do not come from the Camellia sinensis bush and therefore are not 'true' teas. Herbal teas are made of grasses like lemongrass, barks like cinnamon, fruits like orange peel, flowers like chamomile and hibiscus, and many other botanicals.

Our herbal teas should be brewed with 190-209 degree water and steeped 3-5 minutes.

BLACK TEAS

Robust, full-bodied, and bold – such characteristics describe the taste and appeal of black tea. When brewed, black tea typically yields a hearty, amber cup—think of the Assams of India or the smoky Lapsang Souchong from China.

Brew black teas for 3-5 minutes at 190-209 degrees.

OOLONG TEAS

Oolong tea is between black and green tea in color and taste. China and Taiwan are the main producers of oolong tea.

Oolong tea should be brewed with water between 160-180 degrees for 1-3 minutes. Some oolongs can be infused multiple times.

GREEN TEAS

Green tea has a delicate yet distinctive taste, and can be almost colorless in the cup to pale green or golden. Some green teas have a vegetal taste that is highly desired by green tea lovers.

Green teas should be made with slightly cooler water, between 170-190 degrees. Typically, green teas should be steeped for only 1-3 minutes.

WHITE TEAS

White tea typically has a lighter, more delicate taste than other teas. White tea is the least processed type of tea.

Brew white tea with water reaching the first hint of steam, around 150-170 degrees. Steep for 1-2 minutes. As with any tea, brewing times vary according to personal preference.

All teas in our catalog are kosher certified. All of our teaware meets Federal and State of California Regulations for lead.

Guayusa (gwhy-you-sa) is a rare, naturally caffeinated herbal tea produced from the leaves of a holly tree native to the Amazon rainforest of Ecuador. It has been part of the local culture and cultivated for over 2000 years, treasured for its unique balance of caffeine, antioxidants, vitamins and amino acids.*

Guayusa is grown and hand-picked by local farmers from the rich soil under the canopy of the Amazon Rainforest. Your purchase of Guayusa supports these small farms and the local community, and helps the Rainforest thrive.

Unlike coffee or other energy drinks, Guayusa provides balanced energy without the jitters or the sudden crash commonly associated with caffeinated drinks. Its catechins provide a slow release of caffeine for awake and sustainable energy.

chinese YIXING

Yixing (ee-shing) teapots first appeared centuries ago in the Yixing region of China. This region is the world's only source for the unique clay, called purple clay, from which these teapots are made. Yixing teapots are particularly valued due to the porous nature of the clay. The teapots are left uncoated and eventually absorb the flavor, smell, and color of the tea.
